(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

NORFOLK, VA., May 8.—The trial of the Adojh Michelsohn case in the Corporation Court this morning resulted in a vetdict of not guilty. Judge D. Tucker Brooke, for the defense, made an intercising argument to sustain his motion for a dismissal of the case, because the evidence showed that the charge was based on the taking of a worthless check for $000, which had been returned from the bank marked "payment stopped," and which, therefore, was not negotiable, was valueless and could not be the basis of a charge of grand larceny.

Judge Hanckel overruled the motion, and said in effect that while the question, as presented by Judge Brooke, is interesting and difficult, he would not change his ruling because the check, though rejected by the bank, is still a check, and therefore the taking of it is subject to andictement under the statute. He gave instructions to the jury to that effect, and the argument of Attorney Mallett for the prosecution was delivered. Judge Brooke made a successful argument to show that Michelsohn should not be convicted of stealing a check that was used for kiting. The jury was out iffteen minutes in finding a verdict of not guilty.

The creditors of Benjamin Miller will meet to-morrow morning at the office of Referee in Bankruptcy Groner. Miller recently went into bankruptcy with liabilities of over $10,000 and very small aspets. Up to this afternoon seventy-five creditors had been summoned, and Mr. Groner stated that if there was not enough room in his office the meeting would be adjourned to the Federal building. Miller's counsel is Edwin R. Baird, Jr. Miller was closely associated with Bankrupt Michelsohn, and endorsed many of the notes of the latter.
